TA TCH LIAO

The Scene of a Bloody Battle

JAPS COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL

Japs Shell Hwang Shin and Force Russian's to Retire Kuropatkin's Dilemma. Position of Vladivostock Fleet

RUSSIANS ROUTED AT NEW CHWANG.

Paris, July 26th.—A dispatch from New Chwang says that heavy fighting continued all day long on July 24th. The battle lasted for 18 hours. The Russians were driven back on the east side and were reported to be utterly routed on the north. The dispatch says that the Russians evacuated New Chwang. The Japanese will probably take possession of it on July 26.

GREAT LAND BATTLE OF THE WAR.

London, July 26th.—Cabling under date of July 24th the New Chwang correspondent describes a fourteen hour desperate battle with heavy losses on both sides and which resulted in the Russian position at Ta Tehe Kiao being rendered untenable by reason of which the Russians were compelled to retire towards Ha Cheng.

The battle began at 6 o'clock in the morning, the correspondent says, the Russians resuming the attack on the Japanese on the heights above Ta Tehe Kiao.

After a few hours the Japanese left flank captured the village of Tang Kud Tuen, compelling the Russians to retire to Tieng Hua Tuen, six miles from their base. The Russians, now reinforced, maintained their position until five o'clock in the afternoon when the Japanese right flank gave a sudden advance on the hills south of Ta Tehe Kiao and by a tremendous fire forced the Russians to retire.

The Japanese line extended 15 miles. After two more hours of an incessant fire of shot and shell they swept the last hill and the plain clear of Russians.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN BACK.

New Chwang, July 26.—A battle took place yesterday east of Ta Tehe Kiao, which resulted in the Russians being driven back and it is believed that they will have to retire to Liao Yang. The battle lasted all day.

THE VLADIVOSTOK SQUADRON.

Tokio, July 26.—The Vladivostok squadron was sighted twenty miles off Katsu Ura at seven o'clock this morning coming slowly east. Katsu Ura is about 100 miles northeast of Cape Iro, where the Vladivostok squadron was reported yesterday. Katsu Ura lies almost due east of Tokio.

ACTIVE OPERATIONS ON LAND AND SEA.

London, July 26.—A special to the London morning newspapers confirms the news of active operations at the seat of war. The Daily Telegraph's Chefoo correspondent, under date of July 23rd says: "A junk from Dalny reports that last night a Japanese fleet of twenty warships and twenty torpedo boats bombarded Hwang Shin for three hours and the forts replied." The same correspondent learns that the Japanese first army is being largely reinforced by veterans from the reserves.

KUROPATKIN'S DILEMMA.

The correspondent of the Standard with the Japanese army, under date of July 23rd, says: "It is difficult to understand the intention of the Russians. Kuropatkin is evidently bent on retreat northwards yet he lingers in the south, attracted apparently by Port Arthur.

The correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, in a dispatch dated at Mo-tien pass, July 23rd, regards General Kuropatkin as out-manoeuvred and anxious to abandon Liao Yang without fighting, but also reluctant to retire while Port Arthur remains unoccupied.

WEATHER AND CROPS

Northern Alberta has enjoyed ideal growing weather so far this season in the immediate vicinity of Edmonton. Frequent and copious showers of rain have provided plenty of moisture and, although from some outlying districts come reports of continued dry weather, on the whole the rainfall has been ample. Saturday evening's heavy rain seems to have been general and the ground has received a thorough soaking. The great amount of hot, sunny weather, which we have had this year has had an exceedingly beneficial effect on the crops. The hot winds of last week, an unusual thing in this district, tended to dry out the straw and thus cause the grain to ripen more quickly.

The crops in all localities are heading out and the heads are noticeably larger than in previous years. In some districts oats and barley are a little late but the present splendid weather is bringing them on apace. The barley seems to be the best crop of all this season, especially in the locality of Edmonton. In all grains the straw this year is shorter, which fact is more of a blessing than a drawback. In recent years, owing to the great amount of moisture, the crops grew and kept on growing till in numerous cases they were upwards of six feet in height. The result was that there was insufficient time for the grain to ripen after it stopped growing and it was damaged by the early frosts. This year there is very little of this. The hot weather has tended to ripen the grain quickly and any danger from frost is unlikely.

One peculiar feature of this year's crop is the immense quantity of weeds in it. Acre after acre is yellow with one or other species of the mustard family of plants. Many attribute this fact to the immense importation of Ontario seed oats.

Another surprising feature of the crop is that in districts where Alberta raised oats were used almost exclusively for seed the crops are of a better appearance and further advanced than in many of the districts where Ontario oats were used for seed. As a result of the sowing of this latter seed, in many localities the Canadian thistle is thriving luxuriantly. One farmer states that a number of years ago he imported Ontario oats for seed and that he has been fighting the Canadian thistle ever since. He now refuses to sow anything but Alberta raised seed.

All things considered, the crop outlook in Northern Alberta is most favorable and nothing short of an accident can prevent a bumper crop being realized.

EDMONTON'S FINE SPIRIT

Under the above heading the Calgary Herald editorially remarks:

"Calgary and Edmonton are each the centre of districts enriched by the best gifts of nature. They are rivals in the strict commercial sense and neither loses an opportunity to acquire industries that are calculated to give its particular locality an advantage in commerce and agriculture. But in truth the feeling between the two sections is very cordial. This week the Edmonton papers devote considerable space to Calgary's good fortune in securing the beet sugar proposition. Some space is devoted to the huge irrigation scheme and several items appear on different pages of the enterprising papers calling attention to Calgary industries."

"This is an exhibition of cordial spirit that Calgary ought to appreciate. It shows that two cities can be keen rivals without indulging in silly attacks through their respective newspapers. Two months ago the writer was passing from St. Louis to Buffalo on an express train. In the sleeper was a gentleman named Mercer. He was from Edmonton—a merchant—but he had much praise for Calgary. He did not know a Calgary man was present. The idea that a rival must be knocked in business has gone out of fashion in the West."

The Herald has ably put into print what has frequently been remarked in Edmonton. The kindly feeling of genuine interest in the one town for the other has been recently gaining strength, and whatever petty jealousies once existed have entirely disappeared and Calgary has Edmonton's best wishes for unbounded success and prosperity in the future.

EGG LAKE

N. E. Logan is building a new two-story frame house, 23x26. The work is under the direction of Mr. Gross of Morinville. The outside of the house has just been finished, and is away ahead of anything else in this district.

Hay is very plentiful here this summer, and as the sloughs are dry enough to cut it, the farmers will no doubt put up an extra large supply.

A. Rottot has improved his house by adding another story and shingled roof, and clap-boarding the outside. Last week he celebrated the completion of the work by giving a dance, which was well attended. Four or five good fiddlers were present, the new floor was smooth and solid enough for a ballroom and the crowd kept up the fun until about daylight.

A few of the settlers here went to St. Paul de Metis a short time ago with the idea of taking up land in the new colony there, but have returned to Egg Lake and will probably remain here.

The trustees of Egg Lake school are advertising for a teacher. The school was closed in February on account of bad weather and bad roads, and now it seems difficult to get a teacher to open up again.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dwyer and son who have been spending the last two weeks at N. E. Logan's, returned yesterday to St. Eugene.

July 23rd.

An Expert's Testimony

A Winnipeg paper contains the following interview with Harry Good, sporting editor of the Toronto World: Harry J. P. Good, the father of Canadian sporting writers, editor of the Sunday World, Toronto, and one of the best judges of horse flesh in Canada, is in the city on his return trip from Banff to Toronto. While in the West Mr. Good presided at the Calgary Fair and in this position made the most acceptable of judges. He was very much impressed with the progress of the country, and was under the impression that the yield of the crops this season will be the greatest for many years.

"The display of horseflesh at the Calgary Fair," said Mr. Good, "in discussing the exhibition, "was a creditable one. The Clydesdales and the Hackneys were the best I have seen in years, but just as they were good so the saddle and jumping horses and roadsters were bad. Those placed on exhibition were very much below the standard. The saddle horses were of the hard-muscled kind that have to be jerked about with a heavy bit. These animals are of no earthly use for driving, no matter how they may please the native. Heavy cotted horses, I suppose, are necessary for round-ups on cattle ranges but are no good for riding in Eastern cities."

"The jumpers are uncultivated and the riders do not know how to teach them. They race at a four-foot hurdle as if they were going a quarter of a mile dash. They refuse to let the horses take off properly, but carry 'em right up to the hurdle and expect them to take up all behind it and clear it. This is impossible, and many of the contestants out at Calgary brought their horses down across the bars of the jump and painfully injured them."

"The conductors of the hurdle events made a serious mistake in making the hurdles with the top bar fast riveted and bolted. They were four feet high, and when a horse struck the jump it was a case of stopping him and throwing the rider or himself. They were dangerous and unsafe, and horses broken like they are in the Western cattle country are of no earthly use in the East."

"When I first came to Canada, 35 years ago, and took up sporting work, it was the proper thing for drivers to lean back in the buggy and pull for all they were worth to the fit. That was the time when a mile in 2.40 and 2.35 was considered wonderful. As the men became more civilized they got more considerate for a horse's mouth, and the speed they attained was increased until the present stage as the driver of trotters has been reached. The development of the hurdle and jumping horses in the West is just about at the same stage as the driver of trotters was thirty-five years ago in the East."

"The harness horses were a poor lot at Calgary, but I am sure you will have a better lot here at the Dominion Exhibition."

Mr. Good is the press representative of the Industrial Exhibition at Toronto, and declares that that fair will be greater and better than ever before.

DUNDONALD DECLARES
HIMSELF

Ottawa Correspondence:
The Toronto Demonstration

The Dundonald campaign is still in full swing in the press of eastern Canada; and if at any time there had been any doubts as to the object of his Lordship or of his friends that doubt has been removed by their attitude and action during and after the demonstration in his honor which took place in Toronto on Friday, July 15. Up to this time the assumption on the part of Lord Dundonald which was accepted by those who were the objects of his attack was that he was actuated only by motives of the highest imperial interest such as befitted his noble and military rank. The nature of his remarks at Friday's demonstration, and as well the comments upon the affair by the opposition press, point to him as the leading feature in the active campaign by which it is hoped to secure the defeat of the present government of Canada.

The Empire or the Party

Certainly everyone will admit that Lord Dundonald is entirely within his rights in taking such a course. As a citizen of the Empire and a resident of the Dominion it is his privilege to take such part in the active politics of the country as he may see fit. But his doing so changes materially the point of view. When his sole object was supposed to be the maintenance of the integrity of the Empire, his words on the subject were of a certain weight and measure. When his object is avowedly the defeat of the Canadian administration they are necessarily weighed and measured by different standards.

The Conservative Defence Policy

It may be argued that this is but a means to an end; and that with the defeat of the present administration and the accession of their opponents to power his Lordship's views in regard to the defence of Canada would prevail. Nothing has taken place in parliament or has been said in the press that would indicate this to be true. However much the opposition party may find use for Lord Dundonald and his alleged grievances, personal or otherwise, in making their campaign against the government, they have not yet shown any disposition either in press or parliament to support his proposals as to the defence of the Empire. The opposition did not challenge the action of the Government in dismissing his Lordship; and still less the provisions of the Militia Bill which abolishes the office recently held by him. And still less indeed, have his avowed friends expressed themselves as willing to become responsible for the military expenditures which he recommended.

We Must Know the Merits of the Case

Given average intelligence, Lord Dundonald must be aware of these facts; and, therefore, must know that instead of being part of a campaign for the better defence of Canada, he is merely a part of a campaign to secure the accession of the opposition party to power. Again this is perfectly within his rights; but his position as a tool of the opposition party is entirely different from his position as the unprejudiced friend of the Empire; and his words must be weighed accordingly.

His Position as Stated by his Friends

Hitherto discussions regarding him have invariably accorded him the prestige of an exponent of imperial policy. Now that he must be content to be judged by the same standards as others in the same field. That there may be no question as to the view taken by the opposition press regarding Lord Dundonald as a party question, the following quotation from the editorial columns of the Montreal Gazette of the day following the Toronto demonstration, is in order:—

"Goldwin Smith thinks a great wrong is being done to Lord Dundonald by making his difference with the 'Government' a party question. There is no necessity for worrying. It will not be a party question after the Laurier government has been buried under it in the next election."

Or the following from the Ottawa Citizen of Monday morning, July 18th, the first sentence of its leading editorial of the day.

"The Citizen has predicted that the word 'foreigner,' applied in an unguarded moment by the Prime Minister of Canada to one of the most distinguished soldiers of this British Empire will defeat the present government."

His Position as Understood by Himself

The address of Lord Dundonald at Toronto and the circumstances under which it was delivered show that he has thrown himself heart and soul into the political campaign; even if his first attack upon the government was not part of a prearranged political scheme. Since his dismissal from the position of General Officer Commanding he has received a number of invitations to demonstrations in his honor. Upon what principle these demonstrations were made it is hard to conceive except that they were intended by the promoters to emphasize the differences between Lord Dundonald and the government and to give weight to his view of the case. However, it is a matter of fact that at all of these demonstrations before the one held in Toronto, the political feature was kept carefully in the background by both Lord Dundonald and his admirers. Neither in the addresses presented to him nor in his reply were the questions which led to his dismissal discussed. The Toronto demonstration was organized ostensibly on the same lines as the others, and as a consequence large numbers of people permitted the use of their names and gave their presence to the demonstration on the understanding that it was not to be of a partisan character, who certainly could not consistently, and would not, have had anything to do with it had they known it was to be of that character. Notwithstanding this fact, which was well within the knowledge of Lord Dundonald, as well as of those who got up the demonstration, his Lordship made his address a direct, as well as unfair, attack upon the government of the day, and was, of course, accorded a correspondingly enthusiastic demonstration of approval by the good Conservatives of Toronto, who number a very large majority of the population of that city.

Gentlemanly Discretion

It may not perhaps be out of place to point out in relation to the soldierly and gentlemanly qualities of his Lordship, which are so prominently put forward by his friends, that he chose the place in which to make his attack upon the government. In Ottawa or in Renfrew there might have been a possibility of dissent, but in Toronto he was perfectly safe that whatever he might say, contradiction could not be permitted, and there he took the opportunity of saying it.

Turning on the Search Light

One of his remarks relating to himself is perhaps worthy of special mention. Alluding to his dismissal from the command of the militia and its occasion, he said:

"I was myself convinced that matters in this connection were indeed far from satisfactory, and I turned on the searchlight."

This is the figure of speech which his Lordship uses to describe the occasion upon which he made his first attack upon the government, which attack was the occasion of his dismissal. His Lordship's ideas of turning on the searchlight are certainly peculiar. His attack was made in respect of a matter so trivial in comparison with other issues connected with the militia, that it is difficult for anyone to understand how it happened that with the great question of neglect of Canada's defence to be considered his Lordship saw fit to turn the searchlight on the failure of Dr. Pickell to secure the command of a squadron of militia which he was not qualified to hold except by virtue of his being a member of the ruling family of the locality.

Attack not on the Militia Department

The charge was not made against the Militia Department or its responsible head, but against the alleged political interference of the Minister of Agriculture. With the question of the defence of the Empire at stake, as Lord Dundonald has since explained, it does seem remarkable that his searchlight was turned upon the alleged improper interference of the Minister of Agriculture in the trivial appointment in regard to which, when the matter came to be threshed out in parliament it was demonstrated beyond question that if the issue was between Lord Dundonald and Hon. Mr. Fisher, Mr. Fisher was right and Lord Dundonald was wrong.

The Circumstances of Turning the Search Light

If Lord Dundonald wanted to turn the searchlight on the military affairs of Canada he had a thousand ways and means of doing it besides making insulting allusions regarding the minister of Agriculture at a semi-private banquet at which only one newspaper was represented; which allusions were considered to be so injudicious or uncalled for by his friends that at their request, and no doubt with his consent, the newspaper, the Montreal Gazette suppressed them entirely. It was not until another Conservative paper, having heard incidentally of what Lord Dundonald had said to this convivial gathering, published comments upon his alleged statements, that what he actually said was placed before the public by the Montreal Gazette with apologies for having suppressed it. Lord Dundonald must have a powerful imagination when he can speak of such an action as turning the searchlight on the military affairs of Canada.

The Search Light was Turned on Him

This is the figure of speech which his Lordship uses to describe the occasion upon which he made his first attack upon the government, which attack was the occasion of his dismissal. His Lordship's ideas of turning on the searchlight are certainly peculiar. His attack was made in respect of a matter so trivial in comparison with other issues connected with the militia, that it is difficult for anyone to understand how it happened that with the great question of neglect of Canada's defence to be considered his Lordship saw fit to turn the searchlight on the failure of Dr. Pickell to secure the command of a squadron of militia which he was not qualified to hold except by virtue of his being a member of the ruling family of the locality.

BOARD OF TRADE

MET THIS MORNING

Deal with Various Questions of Pressing Interest. Mayor Short Reports

A general meeting of the Edmonton Board of Trade was held in the council chamber this morning. Among those present were President Morris, Secretary Sims, and Messrs. Short, Paton, Walker, Pace, Mills, Kirkpatrick, Mercer and Picard.

The meeting was called in the first place to consider the advisability of having a sitting of the railway commission at Edmonton. Considerable discussion followed, but the prevailing opinion seemed to be that unless Edmonton had a particularly definite grievance which they could substantiate by definite and explicit proofs, it would be inadvisable to have a meeting of the commission here. In view of this it was moved and seconded and unanimously carried, that the Board of Trade do not consider it advisable to have the railway commission meet at Edmonton.

President Morris then called on Mayor Short to give a brief outline of the Calgary Board of Trade convention. A very large number of topics were dealt with by the convention. Transportation questions had been discussed at length and the northern delegates laid great stress on the absolute necessity for thorough and immediate improvement of the Saskatchewan for navigation. The convention had been urged to set forth the fact that the business men of the west almost unanimously support the government in seeking to have the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific transcontinental lines constructed as soon as possible, and further, that there is ample room in the west for both of these roads. Better arrangements had been made for the collection of small debts. An effort was made to have the next convention sit at Edmonton. Regina, however, was chosen for the next place of meeting and Edmonton the year following. Business men's summer excursions to the East had been arranged for and a good roads committee had been appointed.

President Morris stated that he had been informed that the C.P.R. were open to offers from Edmonton and Strathcona and possibly another railway company, for aid in constructing a high level bridge across the Saskatchewan at this point.

Other matters were then taken up. It was agreed to finally adjust the seed oat accounts at once. The offer of T. W. Lines, of the Brackman-Ker Milling Company for the balance of the seed oats on hand, was accepted.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with Mr. Oliver and the postmaster general regarding the inadequate postal facilities at Edmonton and the urgent demands for immediate enlargements.

A similar resolution was carried regarding the immediate erection of a court house at Edmonton.

Mr. Stevens, of the Edmonton Street Railway Company, wrote asking if the Board of Trade would send an exhibit of the products of this district to him for use at the Toronto exhibition. This was agreed to and the procuring of the exhibit left to a committee consisting of Messrs. Donald Ross, T. A. Stephen and C. W. Sutter.

FOR EDMONTON FANS

The Strathcona Team went to Pieces Meeting Defeat by a Score of 20 to 6 and an Innings

The Edmonton baseball team easily defeated Strathcona on the Hudson's Bay grounds last night. The Strathcona team appeared to be at their very worst and the Edmonton aggression with the exception of a few errors, never played better ball.

Stokes first took the pitcher's box for Strathcona, but Edmonton piled up six runs off him in the first innings and he was sent to third base and young Dobson took a turn at the twirling. The local boys found him very easy, scoring almost at will.

Archibald pitched his best game of the season for Edmonton and seemed to do what he pleased with the Strathcona batters. Till did good

TEA AND LECTURE

IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A Great Success. Large Audience Listened to Lecture on Gladstone by Rev. Clark

In connection with the anniversary services a tea and lecture were given in the Presbyterian Church last night. Tea was served from six to eight o'clock and, in general opinion, the laden tables were a little more inviting, and the eatables a little more palatable than at any similar church affair in the city. There was an abundance of the best of everything to satisfy the inner man. Waiters were numerous, and appeared to bend their energies to properly waiting on their guests than to have a good time among themselves which is so painfully evident at the great majority of tea meetings. A large number ate tea and the tables were kept well filled. Eatables of all kinds were on hand in sufficient quantities and to spare. The ladies of the church deserve the greatest credit for the thorough arrangements so successfully carried out for such a dainty and enjoyable tea.

The second part of the evening's programme was the lecture on "Gladstone" by Rev. W. J. Clark of London, Ont. The church was well filled and the fact that this large audience on a warm summer evening, should sit throughout the entire lecture showing the most marked interest, is a distinctive compliment to the lecture and to him who delivered it. Mr. Clark felt absolutely at home in dealing with the life of England's Grand Old Man. The lessons drawn from the life of this remarkable man although not given in an unusual manner were well taken and sunk deeply into the memories of the audience. Mr. Clark seemed especially fitted and handled with a distinctive poesy those darker and more touching passages in Gladstone's life. Those who were fortunate enough to be present last evening cannot fail to be benefitted, encouraged and spurred on to higher ambitions by having listened to an enthusiast thus impressively personally introduce them to this great statesman and great man who has left the influence of his life's example indelibly imprinted on the people of the present generation in the British Isles and the colonies, if not upon the entire civilized world.

At the conclusion of the lecture the audience involuntarily burst into loud and fitting applause. A hearty vote of thanks was rendered Mr. Clark by Mayor Short to which the audience heartily responded.

A short musical programme had been arranged but owing to unavoidable disappointments this part had to be dispensed with.

sions and no doubt would have continued to do on subsequent occasions, had not his injudicious newspaper friend brought the matter before the public and placed Lord Dundonald where he properly belongs, in the fighting ranks of the opposition party. Such a campaign of treachery can surely be called turning on the moribund, even by the most vivid imagination.

As to the Defence of the Empire

The question properly at issue between Lord Dundonald and the Dominion Government, -if there is a question between them - is as to the means taken by the Government, through its Militia Department, for the defence of Canada as a part of the Empire. On that point Lord Dundonald saw fit to give to his Toronto audience certain quotations from his report on the subject, to the withholding of which by the Minister of Militia he objected most strongly. But while he quoted from a part of the report prepared by him as the officer of the Government of Canada, placed by him in the hands of the Government, and therefore until published by the Government, a private and not a public document, he did not see fit to place before his hearers a statement of fact as to the expenditure which his recommendations as to re-organization and fortification would require. This is a point upon which the electors of Canada want to be informed before they decide as to whether his Lordship or the Government is in the right.

Where the Search Light is Needed

Every right minded citizen of Canada wants to see the country put and kept in the best possible state of defence, according to its financial means. If Lord Dundonald's proposals were good and could be met by a moderate expenditure, no doubt the Government is to blame for not accepting them. But on the other hand, no matter how good these proposals were, if the expenditure demanded was too great for the resources of the country people will support the Government in declining to accept Lord Dundonald's recommendations.

By disclosing part of his report; if this was good in the other part, (and the whole purpose of his address and of the demonstration by those setting it up was to put the Government in the wrong) it was for him to make a definite statement as to the expenditure which his proposals involved. He stated in general terms what some of his proposals were, but the question that people want to know about, namely, how much they would cost, he did not touch. The only inference is that had he stated the cost of these proposals he would have put the Government in the right and put himself in the wrong before the people of Canada.

The Government must say Nothing but pay up

A most remarkable statement which Lord Dundonald made at the meeting was this:

"The most extraordinary feature of the controversy with regard to the recommendations in my report for 1902 is very remarkable fact that the main feature and recommendations in it so far as paper organization is concerned have already been adopted and are now in force in Canada."

If the main features of his recommendations were carried out, surely he has no good reason to kraitn the Government as he has done for using its judgment in regard to giving effect to those other features which were largely matters of expenditure. The Government, it appears, had established an ammunition factory. One of his recommendations was that there should be another ammunition factory established. A very proper measure no doubt, but still one upon which the Government, which is responsible to the people in matters of expenditure, might very well be permitted to have something to say.

A Deliberately Deceptive Statement

Regarding this, he says there are not enough in the country to arm even the present peace strength of the militia. This may or may not be true. It is certainly not a desirable condition of affairs from a purely military point of view. But at the time Lord Dundonald was speaking he was aware that the reason a larger supply of rifles had not been purchased for the Canadian militia was because the arm in use in the British army was not considered to be altogether satisfactory. That improvements were in prospect, and that the Canadian Government did not think it well, when there was no stress of circumstance, to buy a large supply of rifles which might be considered second rate within a year or two. The matter was discussed in Parliament during a previous session and both sides agreed that it was better to wait until the question of which was the best rifle was decided. Instead, however, of depending upon the British army authorities or the British manufacturers, the Canadian Militia Department has made a contract which has resulted in the establishment of a Canadian rifle factory at Quebec, to manufacture the Ross rifle, which the Canadian authorities have come to the conclusion is the best rifle in the world for military purposes.

Dirty Politics

When Lord Dundonald made the bald statement to his hearers that there were not enough rifles in the country to arm the militia he made it as a political attack upon the Government and he knew the facts to be as above stated. If any person were than a noble earl and general of the British Army were to make such a statement under such circumstances on a political platform in Canada he would be considered to be grossly partisan and grossly unfair; and when Lord Dundonald, although a noble earl and general of the British Army, ascends the party platform as he did in Toronto, (and the more so when he does under false pretenses) he must accept the position which he makes for himself.

Where his Lordship is at

Evidently those who are using his Lordship with his most enthusiastic consent -fancy that he can at once be the imperial officer and member of the British nobility and a Canadian Conservative party back. In this free country of Canada people travel on their merits and not on their titles. Events have proven that Lord Dundonald was fighting the administration secretly while he was drawing the country's pay for doing the country's work. Now that he has ceased to draw the country's pay or do the country's work and has come out in the open as a political partisan his attitude is much more to be commended; but the circumstances under which he came out in the open to the occasion of the Toronto demonstration are in one particular strangely like those which turned the searchlight on his peculiar electioneering methods while at the head of the militia. Lord Dundonald's words and actions speak of him, as only his worst enemy would wish to have him spoken of. His action when in public employment was exactly in line with his breach of faith at the Toronto demonstration, at which he indeed as a guest of all parties he took the opportunity to make a bitterly partisan attack upon one party.

The Facts at Toronto

That there may be no mistake about the nature of his action at Toronto the following quotations are given from an interview of the Toronto World, (Conservative) with J. F. Ellis, (Conservative), chairman of the reception committee.

"I was surprised at the whole tenor of his remarks. I don't think the committee expected it and certainly I did not. * * * It was a Liberal who suggested that Lord Dundonald should be invited to Toronto, and there were Liberal men on the committee who would never have acted had there been any thought of a political meaning in the demonstration. * * * The address was sent to Lord Dundonald beforehand, and what struck me as curious in his reply was the fact that he ignored the address altogether."

Lord Dundonald was well aware that the committee was composed of both Liberals and Conservatives but nothing special was said to any of the non-political character of the occasion.

It had been some time ago

There is only one English word that could describe such action as that of Lord Dundonald at the Montreal banquet and at the Toronto demonstration, had a private individual: a common colonial civilian: the Hon. Sidney Fisher for instance: been the actor, and that word is treachery -premeditated treachery in both cases: instigated by wounded pride, which hoped for revenge through political animosity.

The Canadian Northwest Homestead Regulations

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories, excepting 8 and 16, which has not been homesteaded, or reserved for wood lots for settlers, or for other purposes, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age to the extent of one quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

ENTRY.—Entry may be made per the district in which the land to be taken is situated, or, if the homesteader desires, he may, on application to the Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, the Commissioner of Immigration, Winnipeg, or the local agent, for the district in which the land is situated, receive authority for someone to make entry for him. A fee of $10.00 is charged for a homestead entry.

HOMESTEAD DUTIES.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required by the provisions of the Dominion Lands Act and the amendments thereto, to perform the conditions connected therewith, under one of the following upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years:

(1) At least six months' residence years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by residence upon the first homestead, if the second homestead is in the vicinity of the first homestead.

(3) If a settler has obtained a patent for his homestead, or a certificate for the issue of such certificate, countersigned in the manner prescribed by this Act, and has obtained the entry for a second homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by residence upon the second homestead, if the second homestead is in the vicinity of the first homestead.

(4) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon said land.

The term "vicinity" used above is meant to indicate the same township or an adjoining or cornering township.

A settler who avails himself of the provisions of Clauses 2, 3, or 4, must make a return in good time to the Commissioner of Immigration, or the local agent, or the Dominion Lands Office, in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories, so buildings for their accommodation, and have besides 30 acres substantially.

Every homesteader who fails to comply with the requirements of the Homestead Law is liable to have his entry cancelled, and the land may be again thrown open for entry.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the local agent, sub-agent, or Dominion Lands Inspector. Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, at Ottawa, of his intention to do so.

Information.—Newly arrived immigrants will receive at the Immigration Office, in Winnipeg, or at any Dominion Lands Office, in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories, information as to the lands that are open for entry, and from the officers in charge, free of expense, advice and assistance in securing land to suit them. Full information respecting the land, timber, coal and mineral laws, as well as respecting Dominion Lands in the Railway Belt in British Columbia, may be obtained on application to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, the Commissioner of Immigration, Winnipeg, Manitoba, or to any of the Dominion Lands Agents in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories.

Deputy Minister of the Interior.

Leduc Record: It is with pleasure we learn that the school trustees here are making final inquiries in the matter of, and preparatory to taking action necessary for the sale of C.P.R. lots and land for taxes. The trustees feel they are both legally and morally entitled to the taxes, and intend to go out hard after them, and they certainly would be wanting in their duty as trustees if they did not.

The death occurred at the General Hospital last night of Lilly Belle McLay, daughter of Alex McLay of Horse Hills. She has been very ill at the hospital for over two months. Paying Bills Twice

Calgary Herald:

A man from Winnipeg gave Calgary's city clads the mazzardazzle. That's the only word that will express the idea properly. They could not find sufficient auditors at home so they sent out of town for the gilt-edged article. They had been killed before for exhibiting a decided preference for outsiders, but that made no difference. The Winnipeg auditor came along, dashed over the books, pronounced them correct and turned in a bill for $600. The finance committee has just shaved it down to $60. In the meantime they discovered two bills aggregating $400 which the city had paid twice. The auditor had failed to notice such little discrepancies.

Crops in the South

Okotoks Times:

Rain fell throughout the greater portion of the district adjacent to Okotoks during the past week, thus insuring fairly good spring crops in addition to the excellent winter wheat yield already assured. The crop has reached a state of maturity where nothing but unfavorable weather for harvest can materially reduce the yield. Okotoks has been exceptionally favored this season by reason of such a large increase in new acreage in the territory tributary to the town. The value of the recent shower cannot be estimated, and we have reason to believe that this year will prove a banner year. However a good soaking rain will prove beneficial to the crops to the south of us and we trust the earth may be refreshed with a steady downpour ere the week is over.
